GRAPE GROWING WINE MAKING

Premier Hephburn Planning Complete Survey — Price Reduction of Wine Post- poned in Meantime.

A thorough investigation of the grape growing and wine making industry is being planned by Premier Hephburn, according to information given the president of the Grape Growers' Association, Mr. J. J. Smith, through F. H. Avery, Lincoln's representative in the Legislature.

Mr. Avery has written Mr. Smith, advising that Premier Hephburn had definitely stated that the proposed reduction in retail price of wine had been postponed for at least two or three months.

This will enable the premier to make proposed survey of the situation with the assistance of the views of experts, by which time it will also be known if the Federal Government makes any reduction in wine or spirit tax when the budget is brought down. Mr. Avery estimates that further action will be based entirely and independently on the actual needs of the grape growers, the wineries and consumers.

The Premier was recently asked by the Grape Growers' Assn. to investigate what it termed the "unwarranted interference of certain wineries to the affairs of the grape growers". Alleging "apparent intimidation of growers by certain wineries."

F. H. Avery To Support Premier's Separate School Bill

Leaving their seats at Queen's Park long enough to address a meeting of the Ward 2 Liberal Association Monday night, two members of the Legislature vowed they would back Hon. Mitchell F. Hephburn's separate school bill even if it meant that they must sacrifice their chances of being returned during the next election.

"It has been said by many," declared Mr. Avery, "that the men who stand behind this bill will commit political suicide. I can only say to you, as a Protestant, that I would rather commit political suicide two years hence than see fair play and justice sacrificed for religious prejudice."

Mr. Avery rapped methods used by some of the large department stores in their treatment of employees.

"I should like to see inspectors appointed by the Government to see that these firms are living up to the standards of civilized industry."

Mr. Strachan voiced exactly the same attitude toward the separate school bill as did Mr. Avery—that he would back it at the risk of political defeat when he faced the electors.

The Grimsby Young Men's Chorus was heard to splendid advantage over CKTB, St. Catharines, on Wednesday evening. This talented group of singers delighted a large radio audience by their renderings under the capable leadership of Mr. G. L. Eaton.

TWO YEAR OLD CHILD LOSES LIFE IN MOTOR ACCIDENT NEAR GRIMSBY ON WEDNESDAY

Anne Quinn, Daughter of St. Catharines Resident, Instantly Killed When Car Is Sideswiped By Truck — Joe Hearn, R. R. No. 1, Fonthill, Driver of Car, Suffers Broken Ribs And Two Other Members of Family Injured.

Death claimed a small child on Wednesday afternoon in a tragic accident on No. 6 Highway, about a mile and a half west of the town, when Ann Quinn, R. R. No. 4, St. Catharines, aged about two years, was thrown to the highway and apparently instantly killed in a terrific motor collision, between a truck and a car. The baby, whose mother is reported to be ill in the hospital, was being taken care of by the Hearn family, who were riding when the sad mishap occurred.

John Hearn was a passenger in the front seat with his father Joseph Hearn, the driver of the car, while Mrs. Joseph Hearn was in the rear seat with the baby who was asleep at the time. It is reported that a truck, travelling westward turned out and passed the Hearn car, going in the same direction and then allegedly put on the brakes. In order to avoid crashing into the rear of the truck, Mr. Hearn apparently swerved to the left and in doing so was sideswiped by an oncoming truck belonging to the American Cynamid Company of Niagara Falls. The left side of the car was completely torn out.

The child was removed to the Stonehouse Funeral Home while the three members of the Hearn family were taken to the Moyer Nursing home where they are being treated for severe shock and lacerations to face and head. Mr. Joseph Hearn suffered several broken ribs. Dr. MacMillan attended the injured, Coroner Dr. Gordon A. Maclellan being in attendance.

An inquest will be held at Grimsby on April 29th.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN HAMILTON, MAY 2nd

The question of Daylight Saving being introduced on Saturday, May 2, or Sunday, May 3, precipitated a hot debate in Hamilton council. Eventually it was decided to drop the idea of a change on Sunday and to follow the same procedure as in the past. Accordingly, Hamilton's clocks will be turned ahead one hour on the night of Saturday, May 2.

The anthems will be "Christ The Lord Is Risen To-day," by Massenet, "Hail the Day," by Carrie B. Adams; and a quartette, "O Glorious Hour". The evening anthem will be "The Resurrection and the Life."

Mr. Clifford Hill, B.A., of McMaster University, will be the speaker for the day.

Walter McRae Reviews The Life and Works of Pauline Johnson

In an illuminating and most interesting address given at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church, held in Trinity Hall on Monday evening, Mr. Walter McRae, lecturer and author, reviewed the life and works of Pauline Johnson, The Canadian Poetess, with whom he travelled for nine years and with whom he was associated in giving "Evenings of Poetry." During that period they appeared in scores of communities throughout Canada and United States and also visited England. Mr. McRae, in his book, "Town Hall Tonight," tells many interesting incidents of their visits to various localities.

Born in 1861 on the Indian Reserve near Brantford, Pauline Johnson gave early indication of her talent for writing and reading and when she appeared on the public platform her works met with popular favor. She continued to delight audiences throughout Canada until illness obliged her to retire, her death occurring in British Columbia about a score of years ago.

Mr. McRae recited a number of her poems including "The Song My Paddle Sings," which is considered a classic in literature, showing the superior quality of her writings. She also wrote extensively for various periodicals and was among the outstanding writers of what was known as the "Golden Age of Canadian Literature," when a group of Canadian writers of whom she was one, brought into prominence the name of Canada through the high merit of their literary productions.

One of her works which had a particularly wide appeal was "Legends of Vancouver," of which over 130,000 copies were sold.

Mr. McRae in providing "An Evening With Pauline Johnson," delighted the large number present, the meeting furnishing one of the most interesting held this year under the auspices of the Literary department of the Society. Mr. O. D. Davidson, the convenor, presided while enjoyable musical numbers were furnished by Mr. Jack Ansell and Mr. Irvine Threl.

WM. LOTHIAN TO HEAD CLUB

Elected President of St. Andrew's Men's Service Club — Will Hold Amateur Night.

The officers for 1936 and 1937 season of St. Andrew's Anglican Service Club will be Hon. President, Henry Miller, President, Ald. William Lothian; Vice President, Victor Thompson; Secretary Treasurer, N. McBrien. G. G. Bourn, Jack Apin, Arthur Alma, Hugh Whyte, Executive. The Treasurer's report was most encouraging, showing a substantial balance. The club membership also showed a slight increase.

The most important business before the executive was the Ladies' Night which will be the first Amateur Night to be held in Grimsby. All applications must be in on Tuesday night, April 14 and all applicants must give an approximate time for their number and the age from 15 years or over.

The applicants will not be in competition but will be judged by three competent citizens. This is the regular monthly meeting and is only open to members and their guests for this night.

There is a possibility that if this first amateur night proves a success there will be a date selected for the public to attend when prizes will be awarded to those appearing on this program.

It will be just as well to get applications in early as the number will have to be limited.

Orchards Injured By Tiny Mice And Much Damage Feared

Mice have caused a certain amount of damage to young fruit trees in Westworth county during the winter months. The heavy snowfall during the last season provided the mice with plenty of protection, but cut into their usual means of getting food.

T. J. Mahony, farmers' official receiver and well-known Balfour farmer, said that he would not be surprised if the damage to trees by the rodents was quite heavy.

"One apple orchard in Ancaster I know of was hard hit by mice," he remarked, "and that shows that they must have had a hard time getting enough food. Even the heavy bark on the old trees was attacked."

Pruning operations in the peninsula vineyards are practically completed. Mr. Mahony stated, and fruit tree pruning will be done in the near future. "Gardeners will be starting to tie up the vines pretty soon," he said. "They've made better headway than usual this season. Some of them will also be spraying in a few weeks using dormant spray to kill off scale and other bark diseases before the buds open."

Retiring Officers Are Honored By St Andrew's Women's Auxiliary

Last Friday afternoon, April 4th, members and friends of St. Andrew's Women's Auxiliary gathered at the Parish Hall to hear Mrs. F. J. Brimer, of Victoria, B.C., an officer of the Dominion Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada. Mrs. Brimer gave her listeners first hand information of conditions among the people of the Western Provinces and North-West Territories over which she travels each year in her official capacity.

At the close of Mrs. Brimer's talk an interesting ceremony took place when Mrs. H. E. Yennay, and Mrs. G. E. McConachie, retiring Secretary and Treasurer respectively, were each presented with a crystal bowl filled with tulips, as a night mark of appreciation from their fellow-workers on their retirement; Mrs. Yennay having completed ten years' service and Mrs. McConachie six.

Arrangements were made at this meeting for a Home Baking and Agon Sale to be held at the office of Grimsby Natural Gas Co. on Saturday, April 14th.

Coming Event

TRINITY UNITED WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION will hold a sale of Homemade Baking on Saturday, April 25, in Threl's Store, beginning at 10 a.m.

RESTRICTED RESIDENTIAL AREAS IN GRIMSBY ARE PROPOSED

Council To Enquire Into Question — Continued Co-operation of Employers of Labor in Employing Local Labor Requested in Order to Assist Relief Problem — Board of Education Estimates of $19,900 Approved — Want Garbage Wrapped — Daylight Saving Effective May 3rd.

The Grimsby town council held its regular April meeting on Wednesday evening when a considerable budget of business was disposed of. Mayor Lewis was in the chair and all members of council were in attendance.

May Buy Land
Councillor Chivers favored the purchase of a small piece of land adjoining the town disposal plant, the owner of which has appeared before the council from time to time with reference to water overflowing his property. The land could be utilized in connection with plant. The council will visit property and consider an offer from the owner to buy the land.

Favor Paying 30c Hour On Project
Councillor Chivers called attention to the fact that the west end sewer project would be proceeded with in about two weeks and suggested that those employed on undertaking be paid 30 cents per hour. Councillor Lothian also thought those employed should receive reasonable pay. The council was favorable to paying this wage per hour of project, the sewer having been petitioned for recently and approved.

Want Residential Area
A petition signed by residents of Kidd and Livingston Ave., was presented asking council to put into effect certain restriction as to the type of dwelling to be built in residential areas and specifying that a certain amount be expended on any dwelling erected so as not to reduce value of other residential property in the section. The petition was the result of a request for a building permit, value of dwelling to be $1,500.

Several ratepayers spoke to the petition, voicing the view that dwellings erected in the section referred to should cost not less than $3,000 to $3,500 so as to protect value of other properties in the neighborhood.

It was decided by council to enquire into present bylaw as to restrictions in effect.

Messrs. Chivers, Almas and Wilkins were named a committee to enquire into the advisability of passing by-laws setting aside residential areas in the town, to name the value and kinds of buildings that may be erected in restricted residential areas and to submit present building bylaw to Messrs. Seymour and Lampard, solicitors and to report their findings to this council.

Slot Machines Not Legal

The clerk who was instructed to enquire into the matter at the last meeting of council advised that he had been informed by town solicitors that slot machines were not legal and that steps to clear them out were being taken by the Attorney-General's Dept.

AWAY BACK WHEN

By FRANK FAIRBORN, JR.

In January of 1884—60 years ago, Beamsville village had a shooting affray, which caused tremendous excitement and provided the whole district with a topic of conversation for many weeks. The late William Murray, Provincial Detective, writes in his book, "Memories", of the case as follows:

John Stone was a cynic, an atheist, and an English gentleman. He came of an ancient and honorable family. His father educated him for the Church of England and his mother's heart's desire was to see him a clergyman. He graduated from Harrow (preparatory school only) and was famed among his classmates for his brilliancy. Instead of training for the pulpit he developed a yearning for the stage and he turned his back on the ministerial career planned by his parents and devoted himself to the study of Shakespeare and the portrayal of Shakespearean roles. He married a Miss Morley, a relative of the Right Hon. John Morley, and after loitering for a year or two he suddenly packed his trunks and sailed with his wife, for America.

"He settled in Texas," says Murray, "and bought a large ranch not far from Dallas. Subsequently he moved into Dallas, was elected Mayor and was re-elected. He was such a remarkable man, with such a command of language, that it is not strange he should become involved as the central figure in an affair which drew the attention of the President of the United States, the British Ambassador, the Attorney-General of the United States and high officials of both Canada and the neighboring country."

"Stone had a sister, a Mrs. Ann Hodge, who came from England to Canada and lived in Beamsville, county of Lincoln, twenty miles from Suspension Bridge. Her husband was a fruit grower. Mayor Stone of Dallas made occasional visits to New York and on one of these trips he called to see his sister. One of her children, Maude Hodge, was a beautiful girl of sixteen at this time. John Stone, when he saw her liked her so much that he took her back to Texas and kept her in his own family, educating her with his own children. Several years later Mrs. Hodge went to Texas to visit her brother and daughter. She did not like the lack of things. Maude had grown to a lovely woman of nineteen, and John Stone regarded her with jealous affection. Mrs. Hodge took her daughter away from Stone and brought her home to Beamsville, very much against Stone's wishes."

"John Stone tarried in Texas for a short time, and then he, too, came to Beamsville, where Maude was living. He started a cheese factory and moved his family from Dallas to Beamsville. Maude Hodge became his clerk in the factory. At that time Stone was a man about forty-five years old, of remarkable personality and amazing command of language. He was a man of refined appearance, with sandy-brown hair and grey eyes and rather classic features. One of his chief pleasures was to inveigh against churches and clergymen, and to mock at the calling for which he had been educated. He proclaimed himself an atheist, a believer in no church and in no creed. He denounced Christians as pretenders and the Christian life as a delusion and a sham. Consequently, when Maude, his favorite, because acquainted with Miss Chapman, a very fine lady and sister of the Rev. I. M. Chapman, pastor of the Baptist church of Beamsville, John Stone was displeased greatly. As Miss Chapman's influence over Maude grew, the young girl began to weary of her uncle's empty and went to the factory reluctantly. At length, in January, 1884, she stayed away from the factory, remaining at her own home with her mother. John Stone waited in vain for her return. On January 5th he went to her house. Maude and her mother were sitting in the kitchen, chatting, about two o'clock in the afternoon, when Stone walked in."

"To Ann in?" he asked Mrs. Hodge. "Ann was out. Mrs. Hodge said he would return presently. John Stone stopped over to Maude, opened his coat, drew something from an inside pocket and held it out to Maude."

"The girl saw him draw forth the revolver and offer it to her. She shrunk back."

"Maude, shoot me," said John Stone, holding out the revolver to her.

"Mrs. Hodge screamed and begged her brother not to shoot. Stone, without a word, fired three shots at his favorite. Mrs. Hodge ran out of the house shrieking. As she ran she heard a fourth shot, John Stone had walked to the door, put the pistol to his head and shot himself. Mrs. Hodge and several neighbors hurried to the house. Maude staggered out of the door and fell in the yard. She was carried to the house of a neighbor, Mrs. Konkio and Mrs. Jessop and McLean attended her, locating one bullet in the left side below the heart and another near the left shoulder blade. Stone was taken to his own home. The doctors thought both would die. Two constables were sent to guard Stone at his own house, night and day. He hovered on the verge of death for five weeks, and suddenly, to everybody's surprise, he began to recover. Towards the middle of February the doctors said he soon could be removed to St. Catharines goal."

"I talked with him at the time and he impressed me as one of the most sweet talkers I ever had heard. Words flowed in a ceaseless, unbroken stream. His vocabulary was remarkable."

"It was a high ambition; these things cannot always be accounted for," he said referring to the shooting.

"In February a stranger, giving the name of Mr. Matthews, arrived in Beamsville. No one knew who he was or whence he came. He disappeared as suddenly as he had appeared. John Stone also disappeared. This was on February 14th. One of the constables guarding him possibly was not so much surprised as some others over his escape. I went to Beamsville and traced Stone, where he had driven in a carriage to Suspension Bridge and had crossed to the States (Continued on Page 8.)

HEPBURN STAYS AS LEADER

To Lead Liberals in Next Election — Says No Alternative.

Faced with rebellious protests from his own followers, who were telling him frankly that his retirement split disintegration for the party, Premier Hephburn last week consented to stay as Liberal Leader and Premier for Ontario.

The Premier gave the first intimation of his decision to the Liberal caucus which met at the Parliament Buildings in the afternoon. In the evening he confirmed it with the statement that, as much as he wished to retire because of his health, "there was no alternative but to stay."

"As much as I want to retire," said the Premier, "and as much as I would retire, knowing my own physical condition, there was no alternative but to stay."

The decision "to stick" was made some time within the previous twenty-four hours. The Premier is understood to have been informed then and earlier that some of his own Ministers would resign their portfolios if he retired. The reason for the revolt was the political fact—admitted by Hephburn friends and Hephburn himself—that if the Premier stepped out the party could not carry the next election.

It was reported in some circles that doctors had warned him to retire just twenty-four hours previous to his announcement.

There would be no election in 1936. (Continued on page 8.)

Prices At Sales Are Much Higher

Prices at recent auction sales, it is reported, are much higher than a year ago. The fact of new farm machinery having increased in price recently is believed to be a factor. Bidding is more brisk now, it is stated, and cash seems to be more plentiful. The prices being paid for good work horses is said to be the highest in several years.

Financial Report of the Town of Grimsby For the Year 1935

Goodyear Co. Shows Sales Increase

Quarter's Showing Higher Than Last Year's, Says Partridge.

In a letter to shareholders of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, accompanying dividend cheques for the first quarter of 1935, the president, A. G. Partridge, states: "While figures will not be available for a few days, it is estimated that the first quarter of the current year will show an increase in dollar volume of profit over the corresponding period of a year ago. Tire production has been moderately increased to meet prospective increases in replacement sales and in sales to car manufacturers for equipment purposes. Your company is adequately prepared to maintain its full share of the business and we again request your criticism, suggestions and assistance towards furthering the sale of Goodyear products."

The letter is the first to be issued to shareholders by Mr. Partridge since his election to the presidency of the company in succession to C. H. Carleton, now chairman of the executive and finance committee of the board. The practice of writing to shareholders periodically giving them briefly the latest information available regarding business conditions and their company's position, a practice followed for many years by Mr. Carleton, will be continued by the new president, says Mr. Partridge.

Three Plays Presented At Stoney Creek In Dramatic Competition

The dramatic competition held in the parish hall, Stoney Creek, on Wednesday last between groups from the Vinemount Institute, Junior Institute and Stoney Creek Institute, was a highly successful event.

Three one-act plays were presented, the titles being, A String of Pearls, by Vinemount Institute; The Wise Woman, by the Jr. Institute; and Mary's Dismissal, by Stoney Creek Institute, of which were enjoyed. The outstanding actresses in the plays were: Mrs. C. A. Lee, in The Wise Woman; Mrs. Martha Wespottle; Mrs. W. N. Langdon, in Mary's Dismissal; as Mary, an old servant, and A String of Pearls, Miss Anne Glidden, as Peggy Madison.

The premier award went to the Stoney Creek Institute, second to the Stoney Creek Institute, and third to Vinemount. The Hamilton orchestra supplied the music during intermissions. Fraise was given Miss Marjorie Lee, Mrs. M. K. Morris and Mrs. Geo. Glidden, as directors of the plays.

The adjudicators, Miss C. H. Crower and Prof. C. H. Stearns, of Hamilton, together with Miss Pearl Krick, Mrs. D. Farmer and Mrs. George Glidden were tendered a vote of thanks at the close. Reeve Curran, of Saltfleet, acted as chairman.

Drive Against Slot Machines In St. Kitts Two Fines Imposed

A drive against slot machines in the city of St. Catharines, was continued Wednesday when V. Cervone was fined $150, and Miss Meta Calder, $100, on convictions of maintaining common gaming-houses. Defended by J. J. Beach, both accused entered pleas of guilty, thus not forcing the Crown to call eleven boys, ranging in age from 12 to 17, as witnesses.

Mr. Beach was granted his plea for leniency in fines and against confiscation of the machines. Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, however, told the court it was the intention of his department to drive every slot machine out of the city. No further comment of his could be secured against seizing and breaking up machines, he said.

TOTAL OF $9,000 RAISED BY ST. CATHARINES Y.M.C.A. - Y.W.C.A.

A total of $9,176 was reached at noon Friday at the final report meeting of the Y.M.C.A. - Y.W.C.A. maintenance campaign workers. It is anticipated that this amount will be further augmented by at least $600 from subscriptions yet to be received.

At the meeting a telegram pledging a subscription of $1,000, was read from David E. Mills.

REPAIR GRAFTING FOR GIRDLED TREES

Owing to the severity and extent of the injury to fruit trees, particularly apples, caused by rabbits and mice during the past winter. The Horticultural Experiment Station, Vineland, has considered it advisable to issue instructions for repairing the damage.
It is stated that by following the directions given satisfactory repair may be accomplished with apple and pear trees, but results with the stone fruits (peaches, plums and cherries), are unlikely to be very successful, though nevertheless worth trying in cases of valuable trees.

BETTER THAN WE ADVERTISED

SOME people feel that Bray Chicks can't possibly be as good as we claim they are. Well, ask the man who owns one.
Ask D. R. Duchemin, of Ridgeview Poultry Farm, Myrtle, Ont.
Last year Mr. Duchemin got two lots of chicks—one lot of BRAY
Chicks, one from another source.
After raising the two lots and comparing them, he says the Bray lot were

"Better birds than you advertised".

We DO make strong claims for Bray Chicks. But we can back every claim we make. And here's a customer who says that we could make even stronger claims and still be on the safe side.

This year, naturally, Mr. Du-chemin came back for more Bray Chicks. On Feb. 4 he got 400.
Five weeks later, he still had 390.

Our 1936 catalogue describes the methods of egg selection, brooder selection, etc., which MAKE BRAY Chicks "better than we advertised". Get one and study it. We believe it will pay you.

Several members visited St. Cathar-

Opposes Dismissal of County Constable

Goodman Pettigrew, member of South Grimsby township council, is protesting vigorously over Lincoln county council's action in dismissing County Constable Claude Tufford, Beamsville. Constable Tufford's term expires the end of April.

Mr. Pettigrew commenting on the matter, said: "The township of South Grimsby, Oshesborough and Calder have not nearly as much police protection as other townships in Lincoln county. I would like to remind the county council that over 80,000 worth of poultry was stolen in these three townships in the last three months of 1935. I would also like to point out that while no arrests were made, Constable Claude Tufford responsible for the loss of these birds."

CHAPTER IV
Grimsby Village — Autumn 1850
Installation 24

"Oh, it's good to go away, but it's better to come back home again," said Mrs. Morton with a sigh, entering the bright farm kitchen and parlor after the camp meeting that Monday afternoon. "Let's get to work, Janet, and shine everything up before they come into supper."

"All right, Mamma, it looks so nice in a house again after that little wooden tent. I love it here," she walked around admiring everything as though she had been away a month.

"Yes, we should be glad for our homes, but we had a wonderful camp meeting."

"I liked living in the woods like that," Janet said, "but why did everybody act so different, Mamma, crying so often and shouting?"

"It would be a little hard for you to understand all the camp meeting, child, but having that big Sunday school down there in the afternoon yesterday was nice for you, wasn't it?" said Mrs. Morton, putting Anna-bed down.

Janet nodded enthusiastically. "I liked the marching with banners."

"They put out the brass folders, the brass vases and the long, the candlesticks with curved handles and the mufflers. Rubbing them with plenty of elbow grease they were soon shiny as if they were new."

ing brightly and put back into place. Food was sprinkled liberally over the board table and all over the kitchen floor.

"You do the table and chairs and I'll get at the floor, then that will do for a few days," said Mrs. Morton. They scrubbed hard to bring out the clean white in the boards.

Out in the barn, cleaning of the stables and barn also took place under Mr. Morton. George was growing to be a very handy right hand man to his father and he was loathe to have him go to college.

"I've been thinking, son, I'll offer your job to Sam Crosby. I'm interested in that man now he's going to make an effort to straighten up."

"I'm glad, Pa. I didn't like to leave you with all this farm to look after, and no help but the two little boys. I'll feel better—and now father since I'm sure the Lord has called me I'm going to work hard."

"I know you will, son. You'll be coming back some day to preach to us. That will be a proud day for your mother and me."

By five o'clock house and barn were again in perfect order as though the Mortons had never been away.

"Ma," said Homer excitedly, bursting in the back door, "the wild duck eggs are gone. I wanted to show John and there's nothing there."

"Oh, I wanted to show them to John," she cried, almost in tears. "They were there Saturday when I looked."

"That's too bad, but it's too late for little ducks anyway, Janet," said her mother. "Nature has a way of always looking after her children. Perhaps if you feed the old ones and keep them around, there may be little ones not far away in the spring. You can all play now till supper is ready for tomorrow you'll have to start to school, then I'll only have my baby to help me."

Janet smiled at her little girl who beamed back at her mother. She was very industriously dressing her stocking doll at the moment.

"You got the oil for me again, Janet," coaxed John Topley. "And they were there Saturday when I looked."

SON feeling badly about her empty nest she compiled, "Wait till I get a lump of maple sugar. Perhaps he'll come to you today if you hold it."

The next day they started for school. "Both of you look after John, won't you," whispered Mrs. Morton. "He's strange you know." Each with a lunch box, a reader and arithmetic book tucked under their arms, they trudged to the public school in the village, on Elm Street.

School children no longer attended the old log schoolhouse that stood on Main Street on the hill before going down into the village. It was opposite Walnut cottage, situated on the corner of Main Street and the road down to the big wharf at the lake. Many of the children's parents had gotten their schooling there.

On the mountain Nathan made his way to No. 13 school house, the new Palmer school. It stood on the donated land of William Beamer's property. Before it had been built in '56, school was held in the kitchen of one of Brock Palmer's two houses for the benefit of his own children, the Beamers, the Russes and other neighbors.

They had a good teacher in the person of Augusta Smith, who made her home with the Palmers. She had come over from New Jersey with her brother, A. M., the horticulturist, who in partnership with C. E. Woolverton, owned this first flourishing nursery mostly of the new Crawford peach trees, in Grimsby.

On Thursday night after school the Morton children noticed the fish net across the Forty Creek and immediately knew what that meant. John Beamer who owned the big sawmill on the creek at the top of the mountain wanted a mess of fish for breakfast, and was about to close his food gates in the evening. The news went around the village in no time. That night Friday would be fish day for all the families in Grimsby.

Sure enough, about 10 o'clock at night the food gates were closed at the top of the great ravine, after all five miles currents to the lake were through with the day's work.

Soon the volume of water coming down the mountain diminished considerably which caused the water from the lake a mile away to slowly flow in right up to the base of the mountain. "All night it stayed there until daylight. Mr. Beamer's food gates at the top were again opened. The surplus water flowed out leaving a squirming mass of all sorts of fish behind the nets, mullets, suckers, perch, bass from the lake.

George hitched up early in the morning at the Mortons, and the four of them hurried down. The net had been hauled in and they could help themselves to what was left. They preferred however to hunt around in the holes and crevices. "Hey!" screamed John Topley jumping around in excited glee, "come here, how'll I get him, it's a big mullet in a hole." He had never seen anything like this before.

"Get it with your hands," shouted George. "See, like this." George was an expert, so were Janet and Homer, but ere John could capture his prize he found it necessary to even sit on it before he, wet from top to toe, triumphantly put it in the bag with the rest.

"You'll have to try spearing salmon at the wharf when they go by, John," laughed George. "There's a trick to that too."

Miss Mildred Holmes was her sister's attendant, wearing a midnight blue crepe gown with black accessories. Her bouquet was red roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Robert Hughes of Grimsby. ## Height, Breadth Of Brow Guide To Hairdressing

Fluffy Curls at Temples Will Help Broaden Forehead
That Is High

A Paris beauty specialist, who says that the style of hairdressing should be decided by the height and breadth of forehead in relation to the cheekbones and length of the face, has mapped a chart to aid women in making the best of their qualities.

For the girl with the average low, broad brow, the hair should be curled softly upward from the cheekbones from a centre part, if the nose is short; or a side part if the nose is prominent. If her forehead is exceptionally broad with wide cheekbones, she will do better to pull her hair back from the face and bring it down sleekly at the sides, as an upward curve of the hair would make her brow too low and would emphasize the broadness of her face. Her eyebrows should be thinned and worn straight to give height to the forehead.

For the receding and slightly bulging forehead, the hair should be trained in a wave which juts up from the centre hairline in front and then falls in a long sweep across the upper part of the forehead, thus giving an outward line. In this case the eyebrows might well be patterned after Marlene Dietrich, curving widely up from the bridge of the nose, then sweeping down again slightly before taking a final upward tilt at the end.

If the forehead is high and narrow, the hair should be curled or fluffed at the temples to broaden the face, but if the brow is broad, the hair should be softly waved close to the face, with emphasis on "the top of the head."

"Country Doctor" Slam At Canada

When "The Country Doctor" is shown in Canada, critics will have the opportunity of answering the charge that the production smashes Canada and Canadians a subject of ridicule. W. L. Christie, in The Windsor City Star, expresses wonder why the Ontario censors ever put the seal of approval on the picture.

And the opinion finds strong support from a past President of the Ontario Health Association, Dr. James J. McCann, M.D.C.M., M.P. for South Renfrew, who declared that the film will put Canada in a very bad light throughout the rest of the world; the conditions it depicts have not existed in Canada since 1906. A face is made out of the scenes when the five little girls were brought into the world, that dramatic struggle of Dr. Dufosse to save the lives of mother and the little ones. Dr. McCann protests against the exploitation of one of the wonders of the world for the sake of "American greed."

Possibly in the making of the picture it was inevitable that liberty had to be taken with the actual facts, as the Dionne parents complain, but the film improves the character with the semi-civilized condition of the people in the North, queer people, neglected and no consideration given to their health or well-being. It is put down as an hour and a half of rotten advertising for Canada.

It is all very regrettable and so out of line with all the facts that it will do irreparable harm to Canada and particularly to Ontario. It will put a premium on the proverbial ignorance shown by so many United States visitors as they cross the boundary, as regards Canada. It is difficult to credit some of the absurd questions which United States trip-takers ask, when they first put foot on Canadian soil.

The better class magazines in the United States have told the story of the quintuplets and Dr. Dufosse's work very well. This publicity has given a tremendous impetus to the clinical study of infant welfare all over the continent. Its good effect should not be nullified by a commercial exploitation which belies the truth. — St. Catharines Standard.

It Pays to Advertise

The Goderich Signal published an item about a valuable pigeon which had taken up residence at a farm near Auburn, Ont., and gave the number of its leg-band. The number was recognized in Toronto as being that used by some United States Breeder's Association of the United States was advised accordingly. Even pigeons find that it pays to advertise.—Toronto Star.

As she stepped out of the car the chauffeur handed her a bouquet.

"The flowers, madame," he said. Vaguely, as she went across the pavement under a cross fire of curious and curious eyes, Jean looked at the bouquet. Camellias, lilies of the valley, Pinks had ordered them.

And then Miss de Fontaine was there at her side with a tender smile, a friendly helping hand under her elbow, escorting her into the church; Miss de Fontaine's cousin, the aged Sir Vincent Morton, whom Jean had known since her childhood, was there to give her away. Piers and Miss de Fontaine between them, presumably, had arranged it.

Though the news that the wedding was to take place had leaked out to the newspapers, very few friends had managed to get hold of the information, and so there were but one or two persons only in the church, friends of Hanne's, whom Jean knew by sight. It was far more a quiet wedding, as quiet as a secret wedding is supposed to be.

Feeling rather shaky in the knees Jean walked up the aisle on the arm of Sir Vincent Morton. There by the altar stood Hanne, waiting for her with the white-robed Vicar, while at his side was Lord Edward Bligh—Lord Edward, then, was to be Hanne's best man!

But Jean had eyes only for Hanne; what she wanted to relieve her faintness was some reassuring glance from him, some glimpse of kindness, of ruth or mercy.

But though he was pale, though she was sure that his bronzed face had not its usual colour, he looked calm; his blue eyes were cold, unsmiling, pitiless. He spoke with a smile to Lord Edward, but there was no smile for Jean. And though she fancied that perhaps all this hid some inner desperation there was a grim triumph in his bearing as he took his stand beside her before the altar.

Everyone noticed how pale the sweet faced bride was, lovely little figure that she was, standing there beside the tall, powerfully built bridegroom. A ray of sunshine struck through the dim light of the church, lighting up her face and her hands, whose trembling imparted a slight tremor to the flowers she held. At the words: "Will you take this man to be thy wedded husband..." she looked up at Piers and said in a clear, firm voice:

"I will!"

But her eyes were so blurred with tears that she could not see him; he was only a tall, implacable figure standing over her.

"I will," she said aloud, but within her heart cried out to him: "Be kind to me! Be kind to me!"

When it was his turn to say "I will," he said it in so implacable a tone that the two words seemed to express his whole indomitable philosophy. There rang through Jean's memory the words he had once said to Lord Edward—poor Lord Edward, who had loved her once and was now compelled to look on at this.

"Edward," Piers Hansen had said, long ago on the day on which Jean first had met him, aboard the yacht Corsair. "I go where I like, I do what I want—and what I want I take!"

She felt him take her hand and slip the ring on her finger. Then his lips touched her brow.

Georgia kissed her; people shook her hand and congratulated her. She heard them congratulating Hanne; she heard his voice talking calmly and cheerfully, and everyone laughing at what he said. But when she glanced at him she saw a terrible weariness in his eyes, and though she was near to him he neither looked at nor spoke to her. Well, he had got so far! And she had had a fancy that at the last moment he might let her off!

PROBLEMS OF EVERY DAY LIFE

By Dr. M. M. Lappin

TELL THEM THE TRUTH

"Among the many letters I receive, not a few of them raise a question which I may phrase thus: 'What shall we tell our children?' Here is a typical example:

"Our daughter is almost seventeen. There is a side to life which she has never seen. She will be through with school this year, and some relatives have invited her to stay with them in the city so that she may have better opportunity for advanced education. . . . Our problem is whether we should let her go and run the risk of exposing her to possible dangers which, so far as we know, she does not even know exist."

I have not quoted the letter in full, by any means, but I have quoted enough to indicate what the parents from whom it came believe to be their problem. And, quite frankly, I am surprised that parents in this age should feel this to be a problem. After all, there are many sound reasons for trying to tell the true facts of life from our children? If there is, I confess I cannot find it.

There is nothing about life which cannot be made known to our children, and especially when they are approaching that age at which they are perforce obliged to go out into the world and make life for themselves. Surely it is far better to warn our children about the traps and pitfalls of life than to have them go out in ignorance and fall into some of these traps and pitfalls. Besides, children will get the facts about life somewhere. If they do not get them in the sacred and wholesome atmosphere of the home, they will get them in the muddy places of life and, if we leave them to "learn things in the dark" we are exposing them to very grave dangers.

It is not knowledge that leads our young people astray. It is ignorance, indeed. It is something even worse than ignorance, for no youth or maiden goes out into life wholly ignorant, but a great many do go out with only half-knowledge which amounts to distorted truth about the facts of life, and nothing is more conducive to temptation than half-knowledge. I have seen so much distress resulting from this very thing that, when parents ask me, "What shall we tell our children?" I never hesitate in answering: "Tell them the truth."

Contrary to the opinion of a great number of well-meaning parents, we do our children a distinct disservice when we try to throw a cloak of mystery around life, and to tell from them the true facts concerning life. "To be forewarned is to be forearmed," and I feel that it is our duty to send our children both forewarned and forearmed.

I think we should also make it clear to them that there are a great many people in the world who will not be bound by convention and who rebel against the moral sanctions of society.

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

The one hundredth Anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter by King William IV, in 1807 to the Victoria University, in Cobourg, Ontario, as an institution of higher education, will be observed this fall at Victoria University, Toronto. The Upper Canada Academy changed its name to Victoria College in 1841, and this was changed to Victoria University in 1924. Victoria College conferred the first degree in Arts ever conferred in Upper Canada.

In 1858, The original building of Upper Canada Academy, in Cobourg, was opened in 1858 and still stands. This building is pictured in (1). Emmanuel College, the theological branch of Victoria University, was opened in Toronto in 1851 and is shown in (2) above. her illegitimacy; the thought struck a pang into her, but perhaps if a man would go to such terrible lengths as he was going in order to get her, he would not trouble much about a thing like that.

She found herself standing with her hand in Miss de Fontaine's; it was very odd too, to know that George was her aunt. This, then, explained all that George had done for her, for she had been very fond of that adventurous brother who had died in the attempt to conquer the Pole.

"Happy, darling!" said Miss de Fontaine, looking at her tenderly. "How pale you are! But you look lovely—Piers, how lovely she looks, doesn't she?"

"Exquisite!" said Piers, earnestly.

"I'm going to take her away now."

"We're never to have her any more?" cried Georgina, playfully. "My dear, you have married a terrible brute—just look at his face! You told me he was a brute, but I never believed you until now." Taking Hanne's hand, she shook it, saying: "My dear boy, how lucky you are! And I would not have given her to anyone but to you!"

Glancing at Jean she added:

"The dear child is getting paler and paler—hurry up and get away, Piers. There are battalions of photographers outside, and quite a crowd has collected. Goodbye, my darling Jean—goodbye!"

Macadamized Roads and Their Invention

"The civilized world has become familiar with 'macadamized' roads, but it is doubtful if many of the millions who use them know the origin of the term," observes the Toronto Mail & Empire. The British Institution of Municipal and County Engineers are taking active steps to commemorate the centenary of the death of that pioneer of roadmaking, John Loudon MacAdam, which occurred at Moffat on November 26, 1836.

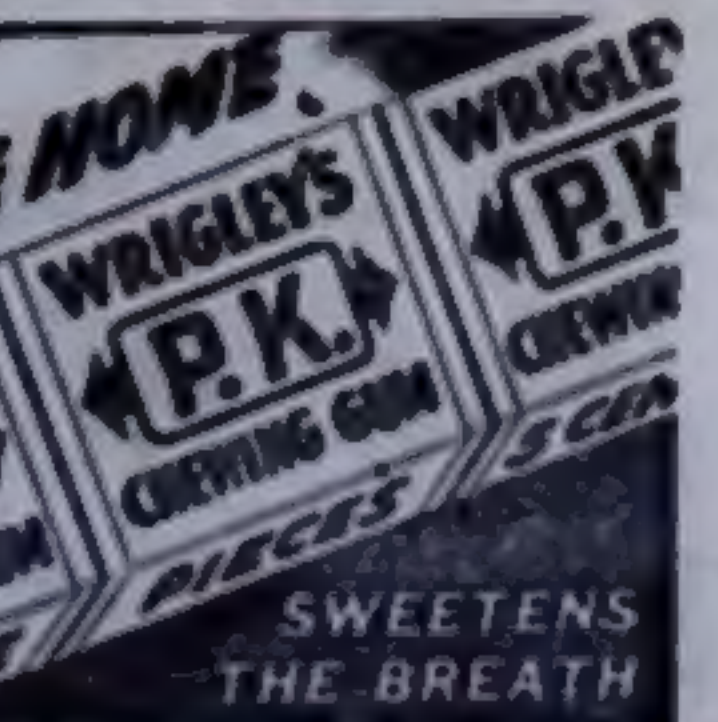

MacAdam was born in 1756, his father being a local landowner and banker in Ayr. At the age of fourteen he joined an uncle in business in New York, and did not return to Scotland until 1783. Thereafter for fifteen years he served as Deputy Lieutenant for the County of Ayr, and devoted much attention to the improvement of the local roads. Subsequently he removed to Falmouth, where he was concerned in the victualling of the navy, though he also made a hobby of studying road conditions in that part of England. In 1816 he was appointed surveyor of the Bristol Turnpike Trust, and a year later demonstrated his system of road construction in London. This system was based upon the principle that, with proper drainage, broken stone of suitable size can be laid on the natural subsoil, thus eliminating the expensive stone-paved foundation that had previously been considered necessary.

We Should Tour Canada First

A gentleman from Western Canada who has made a specialty of taking pictures of the country to illustrate popular lectures, spoke before the Advertising Club of Montreal recently and voiced a rebuke of the tendencies toward provincialism in Canada, the failure of Canadians to see their own country, to be familiar with its resources and opportunities. For that reason, according to this speaker, many resources are undeveloped and national progress is retarded.

Perhaps general consideration of this scheme might stimulate domestic travel, which would be advantageous in many ways. There can be little doubt about the assertion that Canadians are surprisingly ignorant concerning their own territory. There is in Northern Ontario and Quebec a tremendous mineral area, with prosperous operating mines all over the landscape, yet it is safe to say that not five per cent. of the population knows what or where they are or has ever visited that part of the country to acquire intimate knowledge of its progress and prospects.

In Western Canada we possess the world's greatest wheat-producing empire but comparatively few people have visited it to gain first-hand knowledge about agriculture.

Beyond the Rockies is another type of country that is largely unknown to the eastern resident and few westerners are familiar with the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Halifax.

When a Canadian reaches the stage of opulence and unrest that animates him to see the world he packs off on a journey to California, Florida or Europe. He is fairly indifferent to the gigantic scenic and commercial appeal of his own vast country. He may never have seen Niagara Falls, but becomes impatient to check over Paris or Budapest. The slogan "See Canada First" should be preached more vigorously. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Future Veterans Banding Together

Toronto Students Plan to Profit by Experiences of Past Wars

Undergraduates of the University of Toronto, proceeding on the premise that they are destined to be put into uniform when the next war breaks out, have organized a Canadian branch of "The Veterans of Future Wars," in order to prepare in advance for the problems they expect both during and after the actual conflict.

The officers of this new "legion of tomorrow" are as follows: Honorary president, Oliver Dineen; president, R. G. Anglin, Victoria College; vice-president, Clarke Hood, University College; treasurer, James Kemp, Trinity College.

Similar organizations have been formed at several United States universities. The Toronto group has decided to ask the alumni association of the university to erect a cenotaph on the front campus in honor of the veterans of the next war.

"We do not demand an expensive monument," says President Anglin. "One of our members, James Kemp, has designed just the type of cenotaph that will suit our purpose, featuring the simple, homely lines of a park bench. This will not only be a thing of beauty, but will be practical as well, since it will provide a place for the unemployed veterans of tomorrow to sit down."

Gerald Anglin, organizer of the "future veterans," stated that plans were under way for a gala pre-union in Toronto next June, of all Canadian men young enough to be conscripted in the next war.

Asked if his duties as chief organizer did not interfere with his preparations for the coming examinations, Mr. Anglin replied:

"We feel we shouldn't be required to study for exams. Even the Board of Examiners could not be so cold-blooded as to pick students who are going to die for their country in the next future. But just to make doubly sure," he continued, "we will petition President Cuddy to grant us our degrees at once, without writing any exams, so that we will be ready to enlist as soon as the call comes."

Charles Joffe, an active member, has been appointed chairman of the committee in charge of Being Sorry That We Have Only One Life to Give to Our Country.

The "veterans of future wars" also want the Government to pay them each $1,000 bonus immediately. They argue that as "future" victims of war, they ought to get whatever benefits there are.

"If we must die," said one "future war" veteran, "we choose to be paid first."

Saskatchewan Demands Test

Prospective Groom Must Have Certificate

SAKATON, Sask.—While Connecticut boasts of being the first state of the union to demand physical tests before marriage, and then the most stringent anywhere, Saskatchewan preceded the American state by five years in this type of legislation. Amendments to the Saskatchewan Marriage Act, which stipulate those of 1931 in the course of the next few weeks.

Compulsory medical examination before marriage was made law in Saskatchewan in 1931, but the legislation thus far applies only to men. For undivided reasons two governments have hesitated to extend the ruling to the other sex, although women have been most insistent in a demand for this further step.

Under the present regulations, the aspiring bridegroom, applying at the jewelry store for a marriage license, must present a doctor's certificate of health. The examination through which the groom must pass to get a clean bill of health includes a careful check for social disease, mental stability and general health. This includes the laboratory blood test of which Connecticut boasts.

When the proposed changes in the Marriage Act become law, the bridegroom will present his health certificate to the officiating clergyman or marriage commissioner instead of the issuer of the marriage license. The license may be obtained any time up to three months before the ceremony. The health certificate may not be more than 10 days old.

Saskatchewan's civil marriage provisions, also contained in 1931 amendments to the Marriage Act, have not been implemented, partly due to opposition from Roman Catholics in the Province. The minister under whose department the Marriage Regulations are enforced, the Hon. J. M. Usher, in himself a Roman Catholic, declared recently there was no need for civil marriage in Saskatchewan. Since then, however, a civil marriage commissioner has been appointed at Goldfields, the new mining town on Lake Athabasca in the far north of the Prairie Province.

In Norway the farms have separate buildings for various purposes. A building called the Stabbur holds the yearly harvest of cereals, cheeses, bread, cakes and dried meats, etc. When a member of the family wishes to dress for a social affair she must go out and even the yard to a building where her chests of linen and best clothes are stored.

Million Dollar Wrigley Sign Starts Operation

The new Wrigley Spearmint Gum Sign on Times Square, New York City, a million dollar project, largest of its kind in the world, was formally dedicated and put into operation on Saturday evening, March 28th.

The sign occupies the entire block on Broadway from 44th to 45th Street on the east side of Times Square. The new sign is a super-structure on the top of a two-story steel and concrete building built especially to bear the tremendous weight of the display. The world's largest spectacular letters ten stories high; the operation on the sign has a grin a yard wide. The package of Wrigley's Spearmint Gum is larger than a boxcar.

Hundreds of thousands of people will pass the sign each day; the number who pass daily through the subway at Times Square is estimated to be almost equal to the population of Toronto.

Broadway blinks in the splendour of the world's largest tapestry in electric, as the new "spectacular" on the Great White Way, Times Square, New York City, was put into operation recently with ceremony. The huge tropical fish in the scene swim slowly, in startling contrast to the usual eye jerking signs of this type. A full block long and stretching ten stories high, the new display represents a million-dollar investment.

Farm Problems

Conducted by PROFESSOR HENRY G. BELL

with the co-operation of the various departments of Ontario Agricultural College.

The business of farming is yearly becoming more and more dependent upon facts that have been gathered regarding livestock and livestock management, crop production, soil management, disease and insect control and business organization of the farming industry. Individual problems involving one or more of these, and many other phases of agriculture, engage the attention of Ontario farmers from day to day. During the winter months there is a little more time for study of the most acute problems.

Through this column farmers may secure the latest information pertaining to their difficulties. To introduce this service Professor Bell has prepared the following typical problems to indicate the information which should be given in order that a satisfactory answer can be made.

If answer is desired by letter enclose stamped and addressed envelope for reply. Address all inquiries to Professor Henry G. Bell, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Question 1 (a). R. W., Oxford County: "What analysis of fertilizer should I use on strawberries on clay loam soil, heavily manured before planting. Plants have set fairly good and have good top?"

Answer: We assume that the strawberry patch is now standing, having been successfully planted last summer. In regard to the matter of applying fertilizer, it would have been better if you had applied fertilizer to the ground when preparing it for planting. Many successful strawberry growers get good results by supplementing their heavy manure with two or three bags per acre of such a fertilizer as 4-8-10, working this into the soil along the rows where the strawberries are to be planted. Since this was not done in your case, there is good reason to believe that your patch would benefit from scattering this fertilizer on the row where strawberries are planted as soon as the strawberries are worked, early in the spring, working this into the ground. Failing this, the application of nitrogen carriers such as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, at the rate of 100-150 lbs. per acre, in the same manner, would be of benefit.

Children accept our gifts at Christmas time, meanwhile snickering up their sleeves at our story of Santa Claus," Mr. Colgrove declared. It was time, he said, to get rid of Santa Claus as a benevolent person.

SPRING BUDES. — Tree trunks are not a new kind of baggage. Time is required to grow anything—even a business. Melancholy is not a fruit. A coward never has calves. Lipsticks are never used on tulips. A tiger lily has no tail. A dandelion has no rear.

Harris — What kind of a fellow is Willis Elliott?

Clarence — Well, the other night the lights went out in his girl's parlor and he spent the rest of the evening tinkering with the fuses.

PUZZLE

Oh, it isn't Spring—it's the look in your eyes. (I've seen such looks before).

And it's the pounding of my heart, (to think it can pound once more).

And my lips surrender to your kiss with an old familiar thrill. Oh me!

No, it isn't the Spring, so I am insane or I must be in love again.

Fruit Grower — You will notice that all these trees are well pruned. Sweet Young Dumb Thing—They sure have! I don't see a single prune.

Burglar (after being caught stealing in an old maid's bedroom)—

Old Maid (all smiles)—Well, it's never too late to learn.

SHARPEN YOUR PENCIL: If it cost twenty-four billion dollars a year to support those past 60 years of age who will not be allowed to work, how many billions will it take to keep in luxury their sons and daughters who refuse to work?

Father (shocked at finding his daughter on a young man's lap)—

Daughter, just what does this mean? Daughter (dramatically)—Come back in twenty minutes, Dad. I ought to know by then.

About the only satisfaction that comes from being broke is that it enables you to deal decisively with investment salesmen.

Friend—But how did the police spot you in your woman's disguise? Burglar—I passed a milliner's shop without looking at the hats.

"How do you feel?" said the physician who had been called to attend the seamstress. "Oh, now, now, but I seem worse today and have stitches in my side." The doctor hummed and told her she would soon mend.

Gollywog—What did you do when you found the steak like leather and the knife dull?

Pollywog—I just dropped the knife on the steak.

Wouldn't it be great if men would study, train and practice to improve themselves in business as they do in golf?

Chivalrous Old Gentleman (on street car to man who has just settled in the seat he has vacated)—

Pardon me, sir, but I meant that seat for this lady here.

Big Man—Oh, it's quite all right. That's my wife.

Safe Crossings

Device Punctures Tires if Autos Fail To Stop

EDMONTON—H. A. Parsons explained to the Board of Railway Commissioners here a device he invented which he claims will prevent railway crossing accidents by puncturing tires when motorists ignore danger signals.

Called a "puncture barrier," the inventor said it was designed to be installed at crossings and operated by approaching trains. When a train approached within 200 yards of the crossing a red beacon would flash from the box-like contrivance. Should this warning fail to halt the motorist, a row of nails would automatically rise near the rails and puncture the tires.

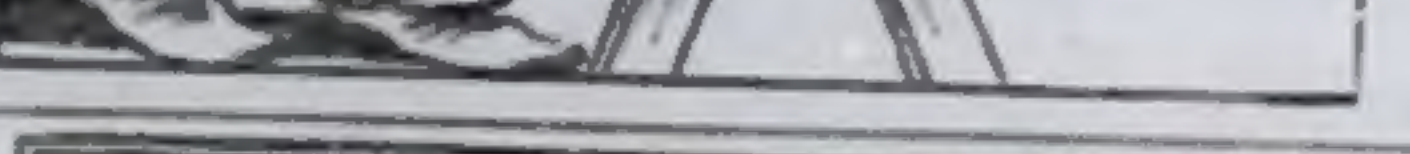

Board members displayed an interest in the invention.

NEWS OF SURROUNDING DISTRICT

BEAMSVILLE

Harold Clarke, a pupil of the high school, has recently completed a clever scroll from The King's Code of Living. The masterpiece has been framed and will be presented to the board of education by the Lena Davis chapter, I.O.D.E., at a special school assembly on Thursday afternoon.

The post office department is asking for tenders for the conveyance of mail on route No. 3 out of Beamsville. Returning Officer S. J. Wilson and Secretary A. M. Payne have just received their cheques for acting in these official capacities in Lincoln county in the Dominion elections of last October.

During the severe windstorm recently, a pupil of the high school while going to school was lifted off her feet, and carried about six feet, dropping her in a very muddy puddle, full length. A trip home again was necessary before the afternoon's lessons began.

Word has been received by Mrs. Roy Waterworth of the death of her brother-in-law, Roland Rankin, in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Jack Morley, of Ottawa, is visiting with her parents here.

Miss Dorothy Elmer has entered as nurse in training in the Salvation Army Hospital, Toronto.

Inspector G. A. Carefoot has advised the board of education that it is contrary to the act to interrupt the school courses with beginners after the Easter holidays. At the regular meeting of the board Friday night it was decided to advise parents to heed the inspector's notice and not start young children until September.

Carteater Norman Wilson, of the high school, was allowed holidays as from July 15 to take in the Vinny trip. He will pay for a substitute.

The high and vocational school was crowded with parents and visitors Friday night to see the various displays of the vocational school. The exhibit of activities was a most comprehensive and pleasing one. The moving picture display was one of the features of the evening.

FRUITLAND

The choir of Fruitland United church held a very successful crochets party Wednesday evening, the proceeds of which is to be used for the purchase of music. Mrs. H. Callick won the ladies' prize and Charles Rolfe the gentlemen's prize. Mrs. Parker and J. B. Pettit received consolation prizes.

The Women's Missionary society of Winona and Fruitland held their Easter thanksgiving meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. J. B. Pettit. Mrs. S. Henderson had charge of the study book and introduced Miss C. Briggeman, Mrs. H. Barnard and Mrs. Woodley, who read papers on the education of the African woman. Mrs. H. Alastie gave a fine description of the medical work carried on throughout the Dominion. Mrs. M. Karr and Mrs. W. Welsh reported on the branch conference recently held in Galt.

Rev. I. M. Meyer is conducting special services in Fruitland United church during Passion week, commencing Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and each night thereafter.

WINONA

There was a good attendance at the community fellowship hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Branton, when William Carson, of Beamsville, brought an inspiring message, The Christian Soldier.

14 YEAR OLD MAN EXPERT WITH RIFLE

The Stony Creek Rifle club, the members of which held target practice every week, had a notable visitor recently in the person of Henry Hammond, of Hagersville, who is 94 years of age. He fired several shots every one of which was on the target, making a remarkable score for a man of his years.

The late Major F. M. Carpenter, then Captain Carpenter, and afterward member of parliament for Wentworth county, was the first officer in charge of the Fifth company when it was organized. The rifle ranges are on the farm of W. E. Curman and were established 50 years ago, in 1886. Several of the original members still participate in the shooting matches.

— AWAY BACK WHEN —

and had taken a train. There I lost him. I returned to Beamsville and learned that Mr. Matthews had a match with him marked "H.W.M., Balto." I prepared extradition papers and went to Baltimore and found that Hugh W. Matthews, a rich manufacturer lived in a fine mansion at No. 265 West Lenoir street, and was a prominent business man of high standing in that city. On inquiry I ascertained that he was a brother-in-law of John Stone. It was March 8th when I arrived in Baltimore and I called on Chief Jacob Frey, an old friend. He detailed Detective Albert Oak and I went to the Matthews home and waited in and found John Stone lying on a lounge in the library gazing idly at the ceiling. I had laid an information before United States Commissioner Rogers and Oak arrested Stone.

"In a twinkling the whole household, servants and all, very around me, saying John Stone was ill and we could not take him. Dr. Bacon and Dr. Harvey hurried in, summoned by a member of the household, and told us we must not lay a hand on John Stone, as it would endanger his life. Discretion was the better part of valor. Stone had seemed quite comfortable when we entered, but he seemed to sink rapidly in five minutes. It may have been due to his earlier love for the stage and acting. I was satisfied he was shamming and I left Oak with him in case he tried to escape again. I went back to Police Headquarters and saw Chief Frey and told him what had happened.

"All right," said Frey. "If there he's ill, there he stays."

"Frey detailed two more detectives, Tom Baringer and Mark Hayes, to John Oak. The three detectives arranged their tour of duty in shifts of eight hours, and they watched John Stone, keeping him in actual sight day and night.

"I called on Commissioner Rogers and on United States Marshall John McClinton. They said they could do nothing. I went to Washington and called on Sir Sackville West, then British Ambassador, and stated my case. Sir Sackville West called a carriage and drove to the State Department. Thomas F. Bayard was Secretary of State. He was deaf as a post. We shouted the case to Mr. Bayard. He said he did not know what he could do until the case came into court. I returned to the British Legation with Sir Sackville, who was a very nice fellow. He advised me to get an American lawyer. He also gave me a letter to Dennis O'Donohue, at Baltimore, one of the oldest British consuls in the continent. After leaving Sir Sackville I went to call on my old friend Senator Daniel W. Voorhees, of Indiana, who had been my counsel before in various extradition cases including the McGehee case in Indianapolis. He was living at The Portland and was indisposed, but he sent word for me to come right up.

"Three justices of the United States Supreme Court were calling on Senator Voorhees at the time. They were Justice Gray, Justice Field and another. It was March 22nd. Voorhees made me laugh telling the judges of old cases and hearing fatality on me. "What is it this time, Murray?" he asked. "Out with it. These gentlemen have heard cases stated before now—deceptive cases, too, and desperately stated."

"I told the case right then and there, the whole story, while the four men, three judges of the United States Supreme Court and Senator Voorhees listened.

"Is he dying?" they asked.
"I think he is feigning," said I.
"Suppose he pleads insanity?" said one of the justices.
"It would not be ughest" said I.
"But if the Commissioner decided against you?" he asked.
"Murray would appeal, so beware, gentlemen, beware," said Senator Voorhees.

"Besides that he carried a pocketful of Canada money," said Voorhees to Gray jokingly. "What shall we do; take it away from him?"
"Oh, no," said Attorney-General Garland. "In respect to our friend, that all expenses, the Commissioner, Marshal, witnesses, doctors, and detectives, amounting to several thousand dollars be paid by the United States. The three detectives were on duty watching Stone one hundred and thirty days. They received $5 each a day, or a total of $1,500. Chief Frey and his staff gave a banquet for me before I left. He and his men stood true through the entire case, and could not be swayed. They are of God's own people in the police business.

"John Stone was discharged in Baltimore. He went to Texas as well as over. Two years later he broke out, and shortly thereafter he died. The bullet was found embedded in his brain. After hearing this, I investigated the matter of foreign substance in the brain. I found a case reported in New Hampshire where a man was blowing the charge hung fire, he tampered with it, and the crowbar was blown up to the top of his head, so that two men had to pull it out and yet he lived. A German case was reported where a man, desiring to commit suicide, drove two chairs into his head with a mallet. They caused him such pain that he yelled, and help came, and pulled them out, and he lived. Marvellous things happen to the brain, and the person still lives.

"The case of John Stone was remarkable, not alone for the bullet in the brain. John Stone was a remarkable man, with a brain full of strange things than bullets, but we were entitled to a jury trial of his case, and in this I feel that my opinion would have been upheld by the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. I do not of course mean to say that I know where I speak. I heard Stone die in the midst of vain imaginings."

HEPBURN STAYS AS LEADER

he said in answer to rumors which have circulated in Queen's Park lately that the Government planned an early election.

"I have nothing to say about 1937, or any other year, for that matter. We certainly will put through a redistribution before any vote, however. You can bank on that," the Premier said when the press questioned him.

"Will there be any Cabinet changes?" a reporter asked.

"Certainly none now," he replied.

"I don't know what made me do it," the Premier told the press. "As far as my own personal well-being is concerned, I should step out of office. My doctors insist I should. But I can't let my colleagues and my supporters down, especially at a time like this. There is such a thing as loyalty to one's friends you know. So I intend going through with this job until after the next election if it hits me."

The Philharmonic Choir of Beamsville assisted by the Community Concert Orchestra, with F. W. Timms conducting, on Thursday evening last presented a most appealing and meritorious program in Community Hall, Beamsville. These two organizations acquitted themselves most creditably in the fifth annual concert which was listened to by a large and appreciative audience.

The program comprised selections by both choir and orchestra, the organizations giving a delightfully varied group of selections which reflected their musicianship and artistry. They were accorded a most appreciative hearing and were generally applauded following the rendition of the various numbers. The unaccompanied numbers were especially appealing while the solos sang with much effectiveness.

Prior to the giving of the concert Mr. W. A. Ross, the president, spoke briefly with reference to the activities of the choir and orchestra whose wholehearted co-operation with the support of the public made possible the giving of these concerts from year to year.

BEATH OF MRS. RICHARD E. EDWARDS

Word was received this Wednesday morning of the death in Modesto, California of Mrs. Richard E. Edwards, known to many Grimsby friends as Lucy B. Clarke, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clarke and niece of the late William F. Clarke.

The deceased lady was born in Grimsby and was a brilliant graduate of Grimsby High School. At one time she taught school at Moulton, in Welland county. Later she resided in Niagara Falls, N.Y., Winnipeg, Nanaimo, B.C. and at her last address in California where she taught school for many years. Her first husband John M. Harlow predeceased her five years ago. She remarried three years later. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. F. Randall, Fruitland, a brother, Andrew B. Clarke, recently news editor of the Toronto Globe and now secretary of the Development and Recovery Committee with offices in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

THE ORIENTAL PEACH MOTH

Insects by name, was introduced from New Jersey by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and in an astonishingly short period became well established, and proved to be by far the most valuable of all fruit moth parasites. In this connection it is worth while mentioning that from 1933 to 1935 parasitism by Macrocentrus increased almost 500 per cent throughout the whole peninsula. It is also of interest to note that an analysis of records taken in four observation orchards in different parts of the peninsula shows that the increase of the introduced parasite more or less parallels the decrease of the moth, and also that the parasite was most probably the greatest single factor in causing the decrease.

It is now reasonably certain that the oriental fruit moth has done its worst and that, from now on in the average season, moth injury will be approximately what it was during the past two years. It will be an agreeable surprise, however, if the insect does not appear every now and again in commercially injurious numbers in at least some orchards.
